Hebrew

This week...

This week we began the final unit in the ShalomLearning curriculum titled Shalom שלום. We talked about the word shalom שלום and some of the meanings behind it. When the word shalom שלום is used in the Torah, it always means "peace." In modern Hebrew, we use it to say hello and goodbye. Students discussed the connections between these meanings.

We read a story about two men whose interactions caused a disagreement that was later resolved by a third party. This story illustrated the concept of shalom bayit שלום בית (peace in the home).

Students began to see how they can help make their home a more peaceful environment. There are different ways of keeping shalom bayit שלום בית among those living inside. What do you think peace in the home should look like? Feel like? Sound like?

After looking at a map of Israel and understanding how Jews have traveled from place to place over the generations, students discussed Israel as a shalom bayit שלום בית.

Watch this video with your child. The word "salaam" is Arabic. Why is an Arabic word used in a Hebrew song?

Hebrew: Avot V'Emahot
